

Digital Humanities Workshop

Knowledge Graphs of Literary Crossings:

Modeling European-Korean Literary Translation History Using Linked Open Data

Date Wed, July 22 – Fri, July 24, 2026

Venue Room 103, Munhyeongwan, The Academy of Korean Studies

Event Director Byungjun Kim, Assistant Professor, Center for Digital Humanities

EVENT SCHEDULE

| Date         | Time          | Program                                                              |
|--------------|---------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Tue, July 21 | Check-in      | Arrival & lodging of German research team (AKS Guesthouse)           |
| Wed, July 22 | 14:00 – 17:30 | Presentation of AKS Digital Humanities Center & evening dinner       |
| Thu, July 23 | 10:00 – 18:00 | Joint workshop of German and AKS research teams                      |
| Fri, July 24 | 10:00 – 12:00 | Workshop wrap-up & strategy meeting for Horizon Europe (ERC project) |

PARTICIPANTS

| Institution                                | Role / Name                 | Presentation Title                                                                                                                               |
|--------------------------------------------|-----------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Academy of Korean Studies (AKS)            | Prof. Byungjun Kim          | Legacies and New Directions: Representative Projects of the AKS Center for Digital Humanities, with Recent Case Studies KNoTE and KPoEM          |
|                                            | Prof. Baro Kim              |                                                                                                                                                  |
|                                            | PhD Student Haein Ji        | Validating the Alignment Between Tone Annotations and Textual Embedding Spaces in 18th-Century French Novels                                     |
|                                            | PhD Cand. Song-yi Jung      | Extending the History of Translation and Criticism by Applying the MiMoText Model to UeDeKo Data                                                 |
|                                            | PhD Student Gayeon Kim      | Applying the TEI XML Tagging of Yi Hae-jo's Cheolsegye to the French Source Text                                                          |
|                                            | MA Student SeonYeong Park   |                                                                                                                                                  |
| Trier Center for Digital Humanities (TCDH) | Prof. Christof Schöch       | Challenges and opportunities of modeling, entering, and validating data in Wikibase.cloud                                                        |
|                                            | Dr. Queenie Lam             | EU-level funding opportunities                                                                                                                   |
|                                            | Dr. Élodie Ripoll           | Understanding the History of European-Korean Literary Translation                                                                                |
|                                            | Dr. Keli Du                 | Extracting distinctive text features for comparative text analysis                                                                               |
|                                            | PhD Cand. Julia Röttgermann | Mining bibliographic data and literary texts for literary history as Linked Open Data                                                            |
|                                            | Dr. Matthias Bremm          | How to run your own Wikibase instance                                                                                                            |
| University of Groningen                    | Prof. Federico Pianzola     | The need for digital comparative literature and the infrastructure gap                                                                           |
| Seoul National University                  | Dr. Ji Yun Lee              | Database for Translation of German Literature into Korean                                                                                        |
|                                            | Dr. Son Hyoung Kwon         | Achievements and Significance of the Project "Development of Database for Translation of German Literature into Korean and Translation Critique" |
| Berlin State Library                       | Dr. Jing Hu                 | Digital Infrastructure for Korean Studies at the Berlin State Library                                                                            |